Resources for working with girls - website & free CD available

Women, Ink., a project of the International Women's Tribune Centre (IWTC), has compiled a resource collection of games, training manuals, workshop guides etc. for teachers, trainers and development workers who are working for and with girls. It includes interactive and participatory training guides and resources on rights, empowerment, violence against women and girls, HIV/AIDS, sexuality and reproductive health and leadership development.

The full resource collection is available online on the IWTC website <http://www.iwtc.org/6774.html> or on a CD. The CD is free and there will be no postage charge for organizations and individuals who request a copy from the Global South. Write to joey@womenink.org or sofia@iwtc.org for more information.

How Mkombozi Undertook the Process of Localizing Management

<http://www.mkombozi.org/publications/> (click on "Resources for NGOs")

This document was written over a 2-year period as the Tanzanian NGO, Mkombozi Centre for Street Children, undertook the process of change from leadership by the expatriate founders to day-to-day leadership by a local board of management. The document is a product of their institutional reflection and learning.
